MARKET HEADLINES

- Quick Editorial: wheat led the way lower overnight with the entire grain complex taking profits off extended move highs, on even a small chance of de-escalation of Black Sea fighting as Russian President Putin mentioned the possibility of a peace deal with Ukraine. That's a long way from an actual pause in attacks and the resumption of full-scale exports, but plenty of war risk premium has been added in three weeks as speculative funds have pushed their corn and soy net positions to estimated records or near-record longs.
- Saudi Arabia issued a tender for 535k tonnes of wheat for Nov-Dec shipment.
- Trade sources said that Asian wheat importers bought "at least half a million tonnes" of wheat from Australia and Argentina in recent deals, in place of regular purchases from the Black Sea..
- Ukraine grain traders union UGA reported combined grain and oilseed exports at 1.2 MMT in August, down from 2.5 MMT in July, including 649k tonnes of wheat, 211k tonnes of corn, and 254k tonnes of rapeseed.
- Private brokerage Allendale yesterday estimated the 2026 U.S. corn yield at 178.7 bushels per acre, down from the USDA's 180.7 bpa, with production at 15.833 bln bu, 170 mbu below the USDA August. Soybean yields came in at 52.6 bpa, a tick below the USDA's 52.7 bpa, with output there pegged at 4.515 bln bu, four million below the USDA August estimate.

WEATHER UPDATE

- The Plains and Midwest were mostly dry over the past 24 hours save for some light northern rains; action mostly holds north through the weekend as well, picking up more heavily in the northern Plains and belt early next week. Extended maps continue to hold out the heaviest rains in the western U.S., though above-normal action will creep into the Plains and NW belt, drier in the eastern half of the Midwest. Temperatures remain safely above-normal up through the middle of the month.
- Argentina remains mostly dry as rain hold out to fringe crop areas over the next ten days; Brazil was dry over the past 24 hours but rains will move in to northern crop areas through Monday, then cover the bulk of the country's crop areas into the 6-10 day period to aid wheat and early soybean moisture.

FUNDAMENTAL UPDATE

Total weekly DOE fuel ethanol production remained strong through the last full week of the 2025/26 corn marketing year, at 1.110 million barrels per day on the week ending August 28; that was down from 1.112 mln bpd on the week prior but above 1.075 mln bpd on the comparable week LY. Cumulative output stands at 1.093 mln bpd, indicating corn use for ethanol of 5.62 bln bu, though strong sorghum use has eaten well into that total vs the USDA's 5.50 bln bu.
